

I signed up for the "Do Not Call" list 'cause it automatically lets the telemarketer know I am not interested in any of their sales tactics or sales pitches. Often, I don't have the time to listen to their explanation that usually takes longer than 5 minutes. They always call when I am in the middle of something that is most important to me. After all, If what I was in the middle of doing was not important I wouldn't be so bothered as I am when the telemarketer calls. It is extremely annoying and they know there are way too many unsuspecting weaklings out there that they have an uncanny ability to take advantage of these weaklings who just can't seem to "just say NO" when they come calling and usually fall into their marketing trap. It usually ends up being cancelled shortly afterwards that takes more time away from the important things in life. Please leave this privacy issue alone and tell the telemarketers to get a real job.
